

December 5th, 2007

As of the end of November, 2007 HAZCO Mid-Canada has now officially received it's COR certification through the Saskatchewan Construction Safety Association (SCSA). The SCSA utilized a great deal of the documentation that was produced during the Manitoba COR certification process which concluded in September 2007. The high scores that were achieved during the Manitoba process were extremely valuable in both expediting and completing the process so quickly in Saskatchewan

In receiving this certification, HAZCO is now safety program certified in British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, making us one of few companies who have their COR certification across all of western Canada.

Receiving these COR certifications was due in-part to HAZCO consistently receiving some of the industries highest safety ratings in each province we operate in. The success that we have achieved in the certification process is a direct reflection upon all of us here at HAZCO, in every level of the company.

Congratulations to not only those who were directly involved in all of the COR auditing processes, but also to everyone within the company for your everyday participation in the safety program

Sincerely,

Clint Wood
